

Taxpayer Service Commitments and Standards Code

Foreword

The Government of Saskatchewan is committed to a secure and prosperous Saskatchewan, leading the country in economic and population growth, while providing opportunity for a high quality of life for all.

The Ministry of Finance is committed to continually strive to improve the standard of the services we provide to businesses and taxpayers, and to be accountable for the quality of the services we provide. Therefore, this Code describes the fairness and service principles that we will follow in administering Saskatchewan's taxes and related programs.

Another key purpose of this Code is to encourage more open communication. Good communication with our various client groups helps us to identify problems early, find solutions faster and to prevent problems before they occur. This results in efficiencies and better outcomes for all involved.

It is our hope that this Code strengthens our relationship with the businesses and individuals who collect and pay taxes – a relationship based on mutual respect, fairness, and cooperation; a partnership of working together.

A. Introduction

The Taxpayer Service Commitments and Standards Code has been developed to establish the fairness and service principles that we will follow when dealing with our stakeholders. Our staff consistently works to meet these principles in their daily activities by providing efficient services and fair treatment.

The Code was developed in order to explain:

- What we do;
- What kinds of services we offer; and,
- Our commitment to try to resolve problems quickly and fairly.

Individuals and businesses are more willing to comply with the law when treated fairly and when they have access to the information and timely services needed to meet obligations and understand entitlements. Obligations may include collecting tax, paying tax, and providing us with information, while entitlements may include receiving refunds and other benefits under the various programs we administer.

The purpose of this Code is to:

- Ensure that you are aware of your rights when dealing with the Ministry of Finance;
- Outline the standards and behaviour you can expect from Ministry staff; and,
- Strengthen our relationship with you.

B. Service Commitments

i. Courtesy and Respect

We are committed to providing you with professional and courteous service. This includes:

- identifying ourselves and the reason we are contacting you;
- interacting in a respectful way;
- listening to your concerns; and,
- meeting our service standards.

ii. Privacy and Confidentiality

We are committed to protecting the confidentiality of your tax information.

We will comply with The Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act when we collect, store, use, or disclose personal information. Saskatchewan's tax legislation also imposes standards for the protection of tax information that we must follow.

With your written authorization, we will discuss your tax issues with your designated representative.

iii. Assistance

We are committed to providing you with timely and accurate responses to questions and requests for tax information. Assistance can be obtained in a number of ways:

- Telephone
- E-mail
- Fax
- Letter mail
- In person

iv. Accessible and Reliable Information

We are committed to providing you with accessible, clear, and accurate information.

Legislation, Information Bulletins, and forms are available from us in paper format and also on our website (www.saskatchewan.ca).

A free on-line update service is available to notify you of changes to our Information Bulletins. The online Information Bulletins each include a link to a survey feature that allows you to provide us with feedback about our bulletins. This information helps us to constantly improve our Information Bulletins and other services.

Sales tax information seminars can be conducted upon request.

v. Written Rulings and Interpretations

We will provide you with written tax rulings and interpretations when requested. Generally, rulings are intended to apply to a specific set of circumstances, while interpretations tend to be of a more general nature, such as our Information Bulletins.

For complex issues with significant potential tax implications, we encourage you to submit written details of the situation under consideration and we will respond with a written ruling to address the application of tax to your particular circumstances.

In order for us to provide an accurate ruling, a complete disclosure of the facts is required. To provide greater certainty in arranging or planning your business affairs, the Ministry of Finance will honour written rulings that are specifically applicable to your circumstances. However, please take care to ensure that a ruling applies to your circumstances before you rely on it. Feel free to contact us if you have any concerns or questions about the applicability of a binding written ruling.

vi. Fairness

We are committed to providing you with consistent and impartial service.

When taxes have not been paid or remitted when required, penalty and interest will be applied. However, if circumstances beyond your control prevented you from complying with the tax legislation, we may consider a full or partial waiver of any penalties or interest payable.

We will allow you to voluntarily disclose or correct a tax liability without penalty or prosecution when specific conditions are met.

vii. Dispute Resolution

We are committed to using our best efforts to resolve any concerns or disagreements that you may have.

If you disagree with a tax decision, ruling, or audit assessment, we encourage you to discuss it first with the Branch or Division you have been dealing with. If you still disagree, you may raise the issue with any level of management within the Ministry of Finance.

There is also a formal appeal process that allows you to appeal a tax assessment to the Board of Revenue Commissioners, which is independent of the Ministry of Finance. This process allows you to state your objections to a tax assessment in writing or at a hearing before the Board. Formal legal representation is not required when you pursue an appeal before the Board of Revenue Commissioners. The Board will review the facts and will issue a binding written decision on the appeal. If you disagree with the Board's finding, you may appeal their decision to the Court of Queen's Bench.

In addition to these tax appeal processes, if you feel that you have been treated unfairly, the Ombudsman of Saskatchewan may be able to help. The Ombudsman is an Officer of the Legislative Assembly of Saskatchewan with the authority to investigate complaints received from members of the public who believe the government administration has dealt with them unfairly.

viii. Feedback

If you feel that the Service Commitments and Standards set out in this Code are not being met or if you have suggestions as to how we might improve our services, please contact the Deputy Minister of Finance, 11th Floor, 2350 Albert Street, Regina, Saskatchewan, S4P 4A6.

We are committed to conducting periodic client satisfaction surveys to allow those who we interact with to evaluate the Ministry's performance and to provide input as to how our quality of service may be improved. We also welcome your suggestions or comments at any time.

iii. Tax Audits

An audit program is essential to ensure that the tax laws are applied correctly, to encourage compliance and to provide information and assistance to taxpayers. Being selected for an audit does not imply that a business is not complying with their sales tax obligations.

We are aware that an audit can be disruptive for many businesses and we will do our best to explain the process and describe the records that are required to complete the audit. We will try to complete the audit quickly, with a minimum of interference to the day-to-day operations of your business, and answer any questions you may have during the audit. Your assistance in making complete and up-to-date records available to the auditor is appreciated and will help to speed up the audit process.

If you have been selected for an audit, you can expect the following to occur:

- In most cases, you will be contacted to arrange an appointment for the audit. If we are unable to contact you by telephone, a letter will be sent.
- You will be advised what records we require for the audit and the audit period that will be covered.
- During the audit, we will review your records and discuss any issues that arise.
- When the audit is complete, we will review the findings with you and provide you with a thorough explanation of the audit, and what, if anything is required from you.
- We will advise you of any overpayments of tax or refunds that you are entitled to.
- If you are assessed tax as a result of the audit, you will have 30 days to make payment without incurring additional interest charges on the amount assessed.
- If you disagree with the assessment, we encourage you to discuss it first with the auditor. If the problem cannot be resolved you will be referred to the auditor's supervisor and then to the manager or director. If you still disagree, you may request that a Notice of Assessment be issued by our Ministry. Once the Notice of Assessment is received, you will have 30 days to file an appeal with the Board of Revenue Commissioners.
- If you provide us with additional information after the audit, we will review it to determine if an adjustment to the audit assessment is required.
- If an audit is performed based on information you submit to our office, you will be notified in writing if an amount is owed along with an explanation of the assessment and supporting worksheets.

iv. Collections and Enforcement

Sales tax is a key revenue source for funding public services and government programs. Therefore, we have a mandate to ensure that taxes owed are paid in a timely manner.

If taxes are not reported or remitted as required by the legislation, we will take the following steps to ensure compliance:

- We will notify you of the required information or payment by mailing updated statements listing any outstanding returns and/or balances.
- If your account remains delinquent after notice has been sent, we will take progressive collection action by way of telephone, letters, personal contact, and legal action as required.
- If there were circumstances beyond your control that prevented you from complying with your tax obligations, please let us know and we will consider whether a full or partial waiver of penalty and interest is warranted.

v. Refund Process

If you believe that you have overpaid tax, you may request a refund. To obtain a refund, you are required to provide us with complete and accurate information. Once a refund amount has been established, we will process it within 21 business days, provided you do not owe tax under another tax statute. If we do not process your refund within 21 days, we will pay you interest on the refund amount. If your refund claim is denied, you will be notified of the reason by telephone or letter.

vi. Voluntary Disclosures

The Ministry of Finance encourages taxpayers to make voluntary disclosures relating to taxes that should have been paid or remitted.

The Ministry of Finance has adopted an administrative policy of allowing taxpayers to avoid prosecution and the application of penalty when taxes owing are voluntarily reported in accordance with all of the following conditions:

- the disclosure must be voluntary and initiated by the individual or business (if the audit process has been commenced, a disclosure will not be considered to be voluntary);
- the disclosure must be accurate and complete;
- the disclosure should include payment of the taxes owed and applicable interest; and,
- the individual or business must have an acceptable filing history.

A voluntary disclosure may be made by contacting the Ministry of Finance. A detailed description is not required during the initial contact. A Ministry representative will explain what additional information or action is required to complete the voluntary disclosure. More information about voluntary disclosures is available by contacting us.
